In September 2008 Queen + Paul Rodgers answered a call from Ukraine's Elena Pinchuk AntiAids Foundation to reach out to the youth of the country with the message "Don't Let AIDS Ruin Your Life" by playing a free Life Must Go On Aids awareness concert performed in Ukraine's second-largest city Kharkiv's historic Freedom Square to a live audience of over 350,000 – and a television audience of more than 10 million.

The band recalls that event as “an unforgettable experience...one of those rare things in life you know you will never forget. A meeting in music, but also a coming together to fight a common enemy...”

Today, with millions of Ukrainian refugees in need of urgent humanitarian relief from a different affliction, Queen is returning to that historic moment with a YouTube special screening aimed at drawing donations for UNHCR relief efforts.
